

Ready for Anything: Empower Your Community with Preparedness

Disasters and emergencies have increasingly impacted communities throughout the U.S., causing billions of dollars of damage. Federal disaster recovery funding provides important resources and is a critical part of recovery efforts, but the complex financial reporting and compliance requirements are often difficult to navigate, especially for local governments in resource-constrained post-disaster operating environments.

Disaster Recovery Public Assistance Financial Administration Training for State and Local Agencies:

Our custom Disaster Recovery Public Assistance Financial Administration Training is designed to help you prepare your community now for emergencies and disasters. This training has been prepared by experts in federal grant funding programs and can be fully customized to meet your needs. Our training will arm you with the practical knowledge for leveraging grant funding when disaster hits.

Why You Need This

Navigating federal disaster recovery funding is a complex and challenging process. There are steps you can take NOW that will help your community receive important funding and other resources when catastrophe hits.

Our custom training, designed for local agencies, addresses critical aspects of financial administration to leverage the benefits of FEMA's Public Assistance (PA) program, the agency's largest grant program for local communities.
